Market overview

In the UK the Bank of England (BoE) lowered base rates by 25 bps in May, to 4.25%. While a further 25-bp cut was discussed at the June Monetary Policy Committee meeting, there was a 6-3 vote in favour of waiting to see how inflationary trends developed in the months ahead, particularly given ongoing uncertainties globally. Escalating geopolitical tensions in the Middle East could affect energy prices and it remains to be seen how bilateral US-UK tariffs could affect consumer prices, despite a trade deal being agreed in principle during the quarter.

Borrowing costs were lowered in the eurozone. The European Central Bank (ECB) cut its main interest rate by 25 basis points in both April and June, reducing it to 2.00%. In their latest communications, officials suggested that trade tensions are likely to continue and possibly intensify. This is complicating the outlook for inflation and, in turn, policy settings.

The federal funds rate in the US was unchanged at 4.25%–4.50% during the quarter, in line with consensus forecasts. The Fed Chair indicated that newly introduced import tariffs will likely add to pricing pressure and that inflation could rise to 3.0% by the end of this year. Officials are not expecting inflation to fall back to the target level until 2027, at the earliest.

Fund activity

Fund size was relatively stable during the quarter, with the CT Sterling Liquidity Fund ending the period with £1.67 billion under management, a gain of £61 million. However, activity was better reflected by the AUM range over the period with a low of £1.40 billion, shortly after Trump shocked the world with his Trade Tariff announcements, and high of £1.80 billion a month later.

These early outflows were funded through both maturities and sales of short-dated UK Treasury bills, while subsequent inflows were allocated to ultra short-dated and liquid assets.

Amidst the unstable market environment, these assets were principally reinvested in rolling one-day repo positions (offering a meaningful pick-up in yield versus overnight deposits), which were then run down to meet investor calls for liquidity in early May.

CP/CD maturities beyond this were partly rotated back into Bills as increased issuance provided attractive opportunities in the primary market, ending the quarter with 56.6% of the Fund held in UK Government debt and 16.3% in CP/CDs, with 8.5% retained as Cash.

We were able to maintain our exposure to Floating Rates notes through participation in primary issuance, which remains thin but sufficient for our requirements, ending the quarter at 12.6% of the Fund. This had the effect of extending our WAL, largely explaining the rise from 57.5 to 66.7 days over the period, while WAM increased from 38.5 to 42.5 days.

Market outlook and positioning

BoE officials believe consumer price inflation in the UK is unlikely to fall meaningfully in the remainder of 2025, but that it could fall back towards the 2.0% target next year. Against this background, policymakers have suggested that a gradual and cautious approach to the further withdrawal of monetary policy restraint remains appropriate.

More specifically, we anticipate a continuation of the quarterly interest rate cuts seen over the past year, most likely in August as reflected by the market. However, a week is a long time in global markets in the current environment, and we take nothing for granted, leaning into longer maturities only when the interest rate risk is adequately rewarded. We will continue to focus Fund positioning on short-term liquidity provision while dynamically rotating core fund holdings across Government bonds and CP/CDs in response to market conditions.
